

Stage 1: Controversy evaluation of the video content

Controversy Score: 5

Judgment basis: The video content involves promises of high income, which may elicit questions about working conditions, authenticity, and potentially mislead certain groups. Additionally, phrases such as "do what you can" and "dare you to challenge it?" within the video may provoke emotional responses from viewers.

Stage 2: Controversy evaluation of the video & comments

Controversy score: 7

Judgment basis: The salary level mentioned in the video description triggered doubts and discussions among commenters. The comments expressed doubts about the video publisher, the people in the video, the regulations and events, as well as concerns about the risks and credibility of the job. The comments included negative descriptions of the work environment and doubts about the authenticity of the job opportunities. In addition, the comments showed strong emotional expressions such as "Arabian Nights" and "face slap", as well as some extreme remarks such as "If you die, do you have to spend the money yourself?" and "You earn money, but you don't spend it."

Stage 3: Controversy evaluation among comments

Controversy Score: 7

Judgment basis:

- 1. There are clear opposing viewpoints in the comments, such as "If I had known this before, why did I do it in the first place" versus "I want to strive to live."*
- 2. Arguments and insults have emerged in the comments, like "No way, I'm afraid of ending up on a stretcher" and "Why don't you go? A heartless boss wouldn't give that much money."*
- 3. The comments contain doubts and criticisms of others' opinions, such as "The credibility is questionable" and "Money is hard to earn, daily payments are fine, but monthly payments are disastrous. What's the point of risking your life for money?"*
- 4. Emotional expressions are present in the comments, like "What's the use of having a lot of money if it ruins your life?" and "You might earn it, but are you afraid you won't live long enough to spend it? If money is more important than life, go ahead and pursue it on your own."*
